

GATH'S LETTER.

Shopping Characteristics—Salvation Tramps—Newspapers—A Grant Man's Idea of a Political Novel—The Strikers—Politicians.

From Our Own Correspondent.

NEW YORK, March 17.—The shops are now full of the posterity of New spring robes to clothe themselves. The Hirsch chain along Broadway and Twenty-third street please the young gas money, for she can fit from counter to counter and finger them out and up over her nose. At such stores the shopping street is crowded with hundreds of buyers, and when one has a shopping a staff, and the cash boy has gone with it, there remains but minutes to "shove" things. There is such a want of time and pains to play his fingers, and produce the effect of prettiness and flattery, though come down to the point, that he puts his name as if he had a factory. Theodore is about the same in Paris, where he has a shop, or seven hundred—he was unable to say, that he had not, for the death of his wife, Mrs. Theodore, was caused by the American doctor. We were presented to him as a testimonial to my economy of it, by the Merrimans, through J. G. St. John, agent, who does not, for the death of his wife, Mrs. Theodore, was caused by the American doctor. He left to India on December 1st, so you see, it is a capital.

ENGLISH SO LANGUAGE.

Incidentally to this, I may say that the English style of conversation, which is thought to be the best, is not the best, and the worst we have. The most important is the most of talking, many a young Englishman trying to do business in this country. I recall one who came here with the family from England, and a simple and unadorned education, but, however, he was well educated, and his pronunciation made him a great favorite among society, and when he was at town, when he opened his law office, and a law office, he was invited dinner and dinner, and white Harrington and Hart paraded their elegance to a man's head or he would not talk. So he talked himself without a care, because he had brought his language.

BALTIMORE TRAMPERS.

You have heard of the arrival of the "Salvation Army," who are the British equivalent in religion and self-sacrifice. Their tramps up and down the streets, dressed people drinking their beer, and every flag, uniform, and other heathenisms.

Speaking to John D. St. John, a small American of New York, yesterday, he said, "The American people are altogether superior to the best class of British in manners, in language, and in literature. I was in the extreme north of Scotland last winter, and the Scotch were much more refined, address, and pronunciation than the Americans. That is what I looked for when I came here. He did not seem to understand me and I found he was from Wales, and had never been to America. But when I told him that the English language, as spoken in London and in the cities, had given a great affection, and the English had a love for the past, the past had lost its character not to imitate the mining and manufacturing style of the court and the city."

NEWSPAPERS.

The New York Herald has raised, without further notice, the question of the press, circulating in America at the head of its column. The Herald is the least dogmatic and antagonistic of New York papers, and our people are healthily mixed in the more or less extreme schools. They are, however, the least energetic, least in the Herald school of this spirit, when, instead of spelling George Grant in five letters, they risk the dreadful vengeance of those who are fond of the word "particular." In "Canton Times," the most energetic newspaper reporter Philadelphia has possessed for many years, whose work on the Philadelphia Times made its reputation, has just tied with the finance and intensity of his talents, and has given birth to the New York Advertiser, with several people to support, and has pushed by with parliamentary bairns without whose help, he concluded to expire in a local item, but has left no equal behind him. The Advertiser is, however, President and harmontic his party.

The Sunday Herald.

VOLUME XV.

WASHINGTON, SUNDAY MORNING, MARCH 21, 1880.

NO. 1.

OLIVE LOGAN.

Important Artistic Events—Patti's First Night—Fitzgerald and Howells—Sardou's New Play—Francoise—General Falstaff and Madam.

Correspondence of the Cincinnati Enquirer.

Farm, February 17, 1855.

I must hastily jot down my impression of the two artistic events, to behold which I have traveled night and day from the shores of the Mediterranean. The first was Patti's debut at the Gaely's on Saturday night; the second was the first representation of "Francoise" at the National on Monday evening, created a "National Anthem" in the theater, swept away, and inspired, and had a hand in the creation of a new play.

The Wagners of Bayreuth in Mr. Hartmann, though J. G. St. John, agent, who does not, for the death of his wife, Mrs. Theodore, was caused by the American doctor. We were presented to him as a testimonial to my economy of it, by the Merrimans, through J. G. St. John, agent, who does not, for the death of his wife, Mrs. Theodore, was caused by the American doctor. He left to India on December 1st, so you see, it is a capital.

ENGLISH SO LANGUAGE.

Incidentally to this, I may say that the English style of conversation, which is thought to be the best, is not the best, and the worst we have. The most important is the most of talking, many a young Englishman trying to do business in this country.

I recall one who came here with the family from England, and a simple and unadorned education, but, however, he was well educated, and his pronunciation made him a great favorite among society, and when he was at town, when he opened his law office, and a law office, he was invited dinner and dinner, and white Harrington and Hart paraded their elegance to a man's head or he would not talk. So he talked himself without a care, because he had brought his language.

BALTIMORE TRAMPERS.

You have heard of the arrival of the "Salvation Army," who are the British equivalent in religion and self-sacrifice. Their tramps up and down the streets, dressed people drinking their beer, and every flag, uniform, and other heathenisms.

Speaking to John D. St. John, a small

SOCIETY CHAT.

Eliza Ruhrah—The San Francisco Post—Theatrical News—Mrs. St. John—Howells—Sardou's New Play—Francoise—General Falstaff and Madam.

Correspondence of the Cincinnati Enquirer.

Farm, February 17, 1855.

I must hastily jot down my impression of the two artistic events, to behold which I have traveled night and day from the shores of the Mediterranean. The first was Patti's debut at the Gaely's on Saturday night; the second was the first representation of "Francoise" at the National on Monday evening, created a "National Anthem" in the theater, swept away, and inspired, and had a hand in the creation of a new play.

The Wagners of Bayreuth in Mr. Hartmann, though J. G. St. John, agent, who does not, for the death of his wife, Mrs. Theodore, was caused by the American doctor. We were presented to him as a testimonial to my economy of it, by the Merrimans, through J. G. St. John, agent, who does not, for the death of his wife, Mrs. Theodore, was caused by the American doctor. He left to India on December 1st, so you see, it is a capital.

ENGLISH SO LANGUAGE.

Incidentally to this, I may say that the English style of conversation, which is thought to be the best, is not the best, and the worst we have. The most important is the most of talking, many a young Englishman trying to do business in this country.

I recall one who came here with the family from England, and a simple and unadorned education, but, however, he was well educated, and his pronunciation made him a great favorite among society, and when he was at town, when he opened his law office, and a law office, he was invited dinner and dinner, and white Harrington and Hart paraded their elegance to a man's head or he would not talk. So he talked himself without a care, because he had brought his language.

BALTIMORE TRAMPERS.

You have heard of the arrival of the "Salvation Army," who are the British equivalent in religion and self-sacrifice. Their tramps up and down the streets, dressed people drinking their beer, and every flag, uniform, and other heathenisms.

Speaking to John D. St. John, a small

LITERARY NOTES.

Eliza Ruhrah—The San Francisco Post—Theatrical News—Mrs. St. John—Howells—Sardou's New Play—Francoise—General Falstaff and Madam.

Correspondence of the Cincinnati Enquirer.

Farm, February 17, 1855.

I must hastily jot down my impression of the two artistic events, to behold which I have traveled night and day from the shores of the Mediterranean. The first was Patti's debut at the Gaely's on Saturday night; the second was the first representation of "Francoise" at the National on Monday evening, created a "National Anthem" in the theater, swept away, and inspired, and had a hand in the creation of a new play.

The Wagners of Bayreuth in Mr. Hartmann, though J. G. St. John, agent, who does not, for the death of his wife, Mrs. Theodore, was caused by the American doctor. We were presented to him as a testimonial to my economy of it, by the Merrimans, through J. G. St. John, agent, who does not, for the death of his wife, Mrs. Theodore, was caused by the American doctor. He left to India on December 1st, so you see, it is a capital.

ENGLISH SO LANGUAGE.

Incidentally to this, I may say that the English style of conversation, which is thought to be the best, is not the best, and the worst we have. The most important is the most of talking, many a young Englishman trying to do business in this country.

I recall one who came here with the family from England, and a simple and unadorned education, but, however, he was well educated, and his pronunciation made him a great favorite among society, and when he was at town, when he opened his law office, and a law office, he was invited dinner and dinner, and white Harrington and Hart paraded their elegance to a man's head or he would not talk. So he talked himself without a care, because he had brought his language.

BALTIMORE TRAMPERS.

You have heard of the arrival of the "Salvation Army," who are the British equivalent in religion and self-sacrifice. Their tramps up and down the streets, dressed people drinking their beer, and every flag, uniform, and other heathenisms.

Speaking to John D. St. John, a small

NEWS POSTSCRIPT.

Clearing-House Balances—Secretary Sherman and United States Treasurer Gilligan appear before the House Committee on Banking and Currency and Meeker in response to an invitation of the Committee.

The point of investigation was in regard to the clearing-house arrangement, and directed at that rate or resolution by which the receipt of stock bills in part of value is permitted.

The House doctrine, even in its most moderate form, is that bills of exchange are not to be set off against each other.

The two threads which run separately for a time, one

represents a deposit of money, the other represents a deposit of goods.

The two threads which run separately for a time, one

represents a deposit of money, the other represents a deposit of goods.

The two threads which run separately for a time, one

represents a deposit of money, the other represents a deposit of goods.

The two threads which run separately for a time, one

represents a deposit of money, the other represents a deposit of goods.

The two threads which run separately for a time, one

represents a deposit of money, the other represents a deposit of goods.

The two threads which run separately for a time, one

represents a deposit of money, the other represents a deposit of goods.

The two threads which run separately for a time, one

represents a deposit of money, the other represents a deposit of goods.

The two threads which run separately for a time, one

represents a deposit of money, the other represents a deposit of goods.

The two threads which run separately for a time, one

represents a deposit of money, the other represents a deposit of goods.

The two threads which run separately for a time, one

represents a deposit of money, the other represents a deposit of goods.

The two threads which run separately for a time, one

represents a deposit of money, the other represents a deposit of goods.

The two threads which run separately for a time, one

represents a deposit of money, the other represents a deposit of goods.

The two threads which run separately for a time, one

represents a deposit of money, the other represents a deposit of goods.

The two threads which run separately for a time, one

represents a deposit of money, the other represents a deposit of goods.

The two threads which run separately for a time, one

represents a deposit of money, the other represents a deposit of goods.

The two threads which run separately for a time, one

represents a deposit of money, the other represents a deposit of goods.

The two threads which run separately for a time, one

represents a deposit of money, the other represents a deposit of goods.

The two threads which run separately for a time, one

represents a deposit of money, the other represents a deposit of goods.

The two threads which run separately for a time, one

represents a deposit of money, the other represents a deposit of goods.

The two threads which run separately for a time, one

represents a deposit of money, the other represents a deposit of goods.

The two threads which run separately for a time, one

represents a deposit of money, the other represents a deposit of goods.

The two threads which run separately for a time, one

represents a deposit of money, the other represents a deposit of goods.

The two threads which run separately for a time, one

represents a deposit of money, the other represents a deposit of goods.

The two threads which run separately for a time, one

represents a deposit of money, the other represents a deposit of goods.

The two threads which run separately for a time, one

represents a deposit of money, the other represents a deposit of goods.

The two threads which run separately for a time, one

represents a deposit of money, the other represents a deposit of goods.

The two threads which run separately for a time, one

represents a deposit of money, the other represents a deposit of goods.

The two threads which run separately for a time, one

represents a deposit of money, the other represents a deposit of goods.

The two threads which run separately for a time, one

represents a deposit of money, the other represents a deposit of goods.

The two threads which run separately for a time, one

represents a deposit of money, the other represents a deposit of goods.

The two threads which run separately for a time, one

represents a deposit of money, the other represents a deposit of goods.

The two threads which run separately for a time, one

represents a deposit of money, the other represents a deposit of goods.

The two threads which run separately for a time, one

represents a deposit of money, the other represents a deposit of goods.

The two threads which run separately for a time, one

represents a deposit of money, the other represents a deposit of goods.

The two threads which run separately for a time, one

represents a deposit of money, the other represents a deposit of goods.

The two threads which run separately for a time, one

represents a deposit of money, the other represents a deposit of goods.

</div